History

In autumn of 2014 the recordings started outside Sundsvall with producer Johan Dereborn (former Takida, Gaston, E-type), where the band recorded the backgrounds live and also mixed the songs "Autumn" and "Kickin" during a couple cold November weekends.

In spring of 2015 the band continued recording "It ain't over" and "This Is My Day" in Stockholm, at Mikael Wikman's fine drum studio (used by Rammstein and others). In autumn of the same year, they decided to put more efforts into the project and came in contact with Mats "Limpan" Lindfors (John Norum, Talisman) who now took over the lead of the project, both recording, mixing and production together with Robert Wiresjö. The rest of the songs were recorded at the prestigious Sound Trade Studios in Solna, where bands like Abba, Europe, and Michael Bolton recorded. Final mastering was done at Cutting Room Stockholm, again by Mats Lindfors.
